About C.

Taylor Broun is an expert in legal and financial matters related to estate planning, business entity formations and structuring, business succession, and tax challenges. He is highly valued by a diverse range of clients, including businesses, individuals, financial institutions, and government entities. His personalized and responsive approach to servicing his clients allows him to prioritize their unique goals and strive to provide top-notch client service.

Individuals and business owners looking to keep their business and wealth secure for future generations rely on his advice. He is thoughtful and pragmatic when developing strategies to keep clients' assets secure as they leave a legacy for the future.

His practice focuses on estate and gift tax, wills and trusts, business formations and planning, financial powers of attorney, and other transactional matters.

Clients come to Taylor whenever challenges arise, at every stage of their life – from the formation of their business to planning for succession, and individual legacy planning to pass on wealth to future generations.

Services

- Tax + Wealth Planning

Prior to joining the firm, Taylor gained a wide range of experience in business and commercial real estate transactions, including representing businesses, banks, and government entities in the negotiation of contracts, sales and acquisitions, financing and development, and formation and structuring of business entities.

Taylor graduated from the University of Georgia with a B.A. in journalism in 2005 and JD from Charleston School of Law in 2008. He continued to grow his expertise in transactional work, with an LL.M. in Transactional Law from Emory University School of Law in 2013.

After Hours

Taylor resides in Athens with his wife, Kim, and their two children. In addition to spending time with family, Taylor appreciates fly fishing, hunting, golfing, hiking, and attending the University of Georgia sporting events, especially football.
